

General Assembly Strengthens Law to Aid Fire Districts

Way Paved for Local Bond Election

Local sponsors of a fire protection district for Lemon Grove were a little apprehensive for several days this past week for fear that the election for the purpose of determining the establishment of fire protection would have to be postponed until next year.

Quick action by the California State General Assembly this week cleared the matter as regards a minor deficiency in the law pertaining to the establishment of fire protection districts and the issuance of bonds.

Under the law as it stood before this action of the Assembly, if a fire district was dissolved, or any portion of the district with drew, the property was no longer liable for the tax necessary to raise money to pay off the bonds, and the Los Angeles attorneys, who are drawing up the bonds, refused to certify them until the law was changed, so that the bondholders would be assured of the payment of the bonds.

This pertains to other fire protection districts besides Lemon Grove that are set up under the same law.

The law, as changed by the Assembly, now reads that all of the original fire protection district is now liable for the payment of the bonds, regardless of any future change in the boundaries of the district.

Credit for getting the change through the Assembly in time for Lemon Grove to hold its election on June 6 is due V. J. Dorman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Chairman J. Morris Mulkey, of the Fire Commission, and Raymond Carmody, member of the Advisory Committee, and the San Diego County representatives in the General Assembly.

Mr. Dorman sent a draft of the proposed change in the law to Kathryn Nelhouse, Assembly woman, and Mulkey and Carmody made a special trip to Sacramento to lay the matter before Senator Kraft, and Assemblymen Luckel and Cloyd, and enlisted their aid in the matter.

The three San Diego County Assemblymen pushed the bill through the lower house and Senator Kraft saw to it that the bill went through the Senate. It was laid on the Governor's desk for his signature Wednesday.

Now the Commissioners, Chamber of Commerce and Advisory Committee are going ahead under full steam to put over the bond issue of $35,000 at the June 6 special election.

The capital outlay of $35,000 will be used for land and station to house the fire truck, the purchase of a fire truck and installation of additional fire hydrants. The Commissioners and Advisory Committee is meeting every Tuesday noon at the school cafeteria and mapping plans for the election.

Anybody in the community is welcome to attend these weekly luncheons and set in on the discussions, providing they make reservations.

Hi. Neighbor

by Mae Rex Graham

Folks in this part of town had a lot of fun last Saturday morning watching the kiddies lined up for their Easter party at the Grove Theatre. Then in the afternoon there was another group—the Safety Patrol from Lemon Grove School. Somehow John van Gilse always appreciates the efforts folks do to try to make a better place in which to live. Every Saturday he has a group of the Patrol boys as his guests. I believe these lads appreciate that, too, and I'll wager that when they have money to buy theatre tickets, they go back to the Grove Theatre and spend that money there. How many of you grown ups stop to think how different it would be here without a theatre. That new theatre Van built was a big step in the advancement and growth of Lemon Grove. Here's what I'm trying to say—If you want a business to stay in your town, you'll have to do the thing to keep it here—patronize it.

That doesn't apply just to this theatre, but to every other business—the dry goods store, the children's shop, the florist, the jeweler, the gift shop, the shoe shop, the dress shop, and all of the rest of the business houses here. Let the dry goods store move out and we'd all be holler ing: "This is a pretty state of affairs when we don't even have a place to buy a spool of thread."

See what I mean! They are here and we just take them for granted. But that doesn't pay the rent.

Lemon Grove is going to be just what you want it to be—a thriving city where other businesses which we need will want to locate or just a few rows of shoe string merchants trying to eke out an existence.

Have you ever stopped to think that when any church, club, P.T.A. Girl or Boy Scouts, or any of the other innumerable organizations want to raise money for a project, they make the rounds of every business in town.

The business man expects and wants to help wherever he can, but don't expect him to smile about it if you spend your money in the city or neighboring towns and leave him to catch what transient trade he can.

A newspaper publisher feels the same way about businesses that expect him to use his capital and energy to build up a town so there will be more trade for the business houses.

Don't you see what a big circle it is. When all of our Lemon Grove folks trade at home, there will have to be expansion and growth for the stores of today couldn't handle all of the trade.

Candidate Speaks at Lions Club

Robert F. Driver, of San Diego, gave a well thought out plan for World Peace at the Lions Club dinner meeting last Thursday evening. He advocated a world governing body representing all of the nations.

Guests were Dr. W. D. Wilhite, newcomer to Lemon Grove, presented by Bob Becht, and Chas. Babcock, introduced by Bill Hill. Attending the Regional Council at the North Park Lions Club on Tuesday evening were Forrest Baxter, Grant Hadley, Jim Snodgrass, Dr. Frank McKinney and H. Halliday.

Clark Sells and Goes to New York

Mr. and Mrs. Lem Clark and son, Bill, who established the Grove Shoe Store, 3488 Main street, in December, have disposed of the stock to Mrs. Fred Ellis and left today (Thursday) for Palmyra, N. Y. where they will again take over the management of their shoe store located there.

The Clarks liked Lemon Grove and hope to return when they dispose of their business interests in Palmyra.

Map Plans for Community Center

All organizations interested in the activities at the Community Center building in Lemon Grove are invited to send one elected or appointed representative to a meeting being called jointly by the Coordinating Council and the Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday evening, April 26, at 8 o'clock in the Community Center.

President V. J. Dorman will preside. Officers and an executive committee will be selected at this meeting, as provided for in the rules and regulations approved by the Board of Supervisors last month. A copy of these rules and regulations is posted on the Chamber of Commerce bulletin board at the Homeland Justice Court. Copies will be mailed to each organization desiring to participate in the Control Board.

College Avenue Coming Through to Broadway

Buildozers started work this week on the Broadway end of the new College Avenue development. College is being extended from University through the hills south to Broadway and several large subdivisions, totaling 1000 new homes are going to be opened up in this area. Some of the new homes will be in the Lemon Grove School District.

Hold Boy Scout Camporee in May

Several districts of San Diego Area Council have set rates for District Camporees as preparation for the Council-wide Camporee at the Camp Pendleton Marine Base May 20 and 21.

Balboa District will hold a camporee at the Scout Headquarters area camp in Balboa Park April 28 and 29. Wilson District will have their two-day camporee at the same place one week earlier; and Grossmont District, of which Lemon Grove is a part, is planning to take over Gillespie Field, El Cajon for a camporee May 6 and 7.

Sewer Bids Opened Monday

Seven firms submitted bids for construction of the sewer lines in Lemon Grove Sewer District No. 4, serving the area along west Broadway to a short distance west of Massachusetts, both north and south of the boulevard.

The bids were referred to the director of public works for checking and it is probable that the contract will be let soon, according to information given the Review yesterday by a representative of the Board of Supervisors office.

CUB SCOUT COUNTY FAIR

With their parents as guests, Cub Scout Pack No. 8 will have a County Fair at Community Center at 7:30 p. m. on Friday evening of next week. There will be a grand prize, contests, games of skill, and skits put on by the Dens.

Nathaniel Bemis and the Cub Scout Committee are helping the Cubs with the event.

Mrs. E. A. McGuire Heads Business Women's League

Mrs. E. A. McGuire was elected president of the Lemon Grove Business Woman's League at the luncheon meeting held last Thursday in Friendship Hall.

Mrs. Douglas Cook will serve as vice-president; Mrs. Bruno Leonessa, secretary; Mrs. Arthur Chappelle, treasurer; Mrs. Wally Toomire, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. I. B. Burkett will install the officers at a dinner dance next Tuesday evening at Casper's Rancho Club, El Cajon. Reservations may be made by purchasing tickets from Mrs. George Dickinson or money may be left at Hill's Jewelry Store or Snyder's Radio Shop.

Mrs. Fred Sheppard was elected to represent the League on the Community Center Control Board.

Rodeo to Replace Horse Show

Supplementing the annual horse show, St. John of the Cross parish will sponsor a rodeo at the horse show amphitheatre on Sunday, June 18.

There will be a barbecue, fiesta and entertainment and other features which will be worked out in committee next week.

New Doctor Locates in Lemon Grove

Dr. David W. Wilhite, physician and surgeon, who received his degree at the College of Medical Science, University of Southern California, has located in Lemon Grove for general practice. His office are in the upstairs at 3492 Main St.

Assisting Dr. Wilhite, will be his wife, Mary Colette Wilhite, R.N.

Dr. Wilhite interned at Los Angeles General Hospital and last year was a resident doctor at Kern County General Hospital, Bakersfield.

Mrs. Wilhite is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carmody of Spring Valley and is well known in this area. The young couple were married two years ago in St. John of the Cross Church.

They have a son, Michael Davis, seven months old, and are temporarily residing at the Carmody home on Valencia Street.

4-H Club Being Formed Here

Sponsored by the Lemon Grove Kiwanis Club a 4-H Club is being formed here under the direction of the Agriculture Committee of the club, headed by James Pickens, in co-operation with the San Diego County Farm Bureau.

The club meets every Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 at the office of the Mason Feed and Supply, 8280 Imperial avenue.

All boys and girls in the community interested in 4-H projects are invited to attend these meetings.

Don Close of the County Extension Service is directing the club into the 4-H activities.

WHY We Need Fire Protection

A. C. ANDERSON
Lemon Grove Fire Commission
How much of your own insurance risk do you underwrite? Do you carry enough insurance to protect your total investment? The items in your home that could not be replaced if destroyed by fire. The outside improvements you have made, such as, wood fences, a lath house, or other small buildings, on which very few have insurance coverage. You can be assured that a responsible fire department in the district will be able to keep the loss down should they become endangered by fire.

Ground Breaking for New Hi School

Ground breaking ceremonies for the new high school on University avenue took place Tuesday afternoon.

Public officials of the City of La Mesa, school trustees and civic organization presidents, along with PTA officers and trustees of the Grossmont High School and school personnel participated in the ground breaking.

One of the shortest speeches on record was made by Supt. Lewis F. Smith of the High school.

He said: "We have a running start on the new high school and we thank you all for coming out here."

The new school will be ready for occupancy in September 1951. It will have a capacity of from 1500 to 1800 pupils, and is being built at a cost of $2,500,000. It is financed in part by a local bond issue of $1,409,000 and the remainder from State funds.

The school will be staffed by a division of the Grossmont Union High School faculty.

No definite boundary lines for the new school, but it will serve the students from the Lemon Grove School District, Rolando and the western portion of La Mesa.

Kids to Air Gripes at PTA Meeting

Three boys and three girls from the sixth and seventh grades of Lemon Grove school will air their gripes about their parents and teachers at the P.T.A. meeting next Thursday evening.

Adults who will answer the charges will be Rev. Russell Hensley, V. J. Dorman, Mrs. J. Durham and Barney Davis.

There will be election and installation of officers.

BACK TO DUTY

Sgt. Charles Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brown, 1415 Taft, who had been home on a 90-day furlough, left the first of March for Camp Stoneman, Pittsburgh. About 2 weeks ago he joined the 24th Division in Japan. While here Charles was married to Miss Margaret Anderson.

WELCOME TO LEMON GROVE

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ball and daughters, Nancy, 8, and Beverly, two and a half, of Los Angeles moved Friday to 2409 Bonita street. Mr. Ball is employed at the Naval Air Station, and also operates a portable body and fender and welding shop.

What you believe must influence what you are. What you are determines what you do, and what you do determines your value here and hereafter.

Kellisons Greet Friends from England They had Never Seen

Last Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kellison and little daughter, Pamela, and little son, Billy, met a train in San Diego with a great deal of anticipation and pleasure for on it was an English friend, Mrs. Eric Hutchinson, and little girl, both of whom they had never seen.

Back in 1937, when Shirley Heeren of Sioux City, Iowa, joined a foreign correspondence course in Junior High School, little did she think that she would eventually prove to be one of the best friends an English girl, Ruby Clinton, of Norwich, England, could have.

Shirley is now Mrs. Bill Kellison, 7248 San Miguel St. Even after Shirley became a busy homemaker and then a mother, she continued to write to Ruby, who had also married.

After graduating from High School, Ruby went to business college and then during the last World War, she joined the WAAF. While in service she was married to Eric Hutchinson, now a Flight Sergeant in the R.A.F. They have a little 5 year old girl, Shirley, named for Mrs. Kellison.

The Hutchinson had hoped

Two Speeches Dedicate VFW Home

Dedication ceremonies for the remodeled Veterans of Foreign Wars hall at 2984 Imperial avenue, took place Monday evening when V. J. Dorman, president of the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce, and Byron Netzel, superintendent of the Lemon Grove schools, spoke on the development of the Post and the community.

Names of the officers were published in the Review, and they took office as scheduled.

H. D. Geller is the new commander of the Post and Mrs. Jack Hunt is the new president of the Auxiliary.

Commander Geller awarded certificates of appreciation to the following men of the community who had contributed services and money toward the construction of the new home.

A. F. Sonka, Henry C. Plum, Ray Padsadnick, C. B. Griggs, Jess Mann, Gary Mann, A. E. Donnelly, Charles A. Whitlock.

Netzel Commends Post

Mr. Netzel spoke first, and a short resume of his remarks appear herewith:

Mr. Netzel expressed his appreciation for the co-operation existing between the VFW post and the schools of the district, in particular regarding school bonds, public school week, contests sponsored by the Post, and the use of the old VFW building for school purposes as a second grade classroom and for band and orchestra rehearsals.

Enrollments	1940	1950
Teachers	270	1630
Other employees	9	33
Classrooms	2	70
	9	27

Fifty-eight classrooms needed. The proposed expansion program would include doubling the size of the Vista La Mesa, the Monterey Heights and Golden Avenue Schools; the Lemon Grove School would be converted to a Junior High School to accommodate 500 pupils, and a new school would be built near Massachusetts and San Miguel.

In closing, Mr. Netzel stated that the new VFW building is a symbol of the service of members of the post to the community. He congratulated the post on their fine meetings and their splendid women's auxiliary.

Dorman Tells of Growth

Mr. Dorman commended the men of the VFW post on their remodeled building and their increased activity and interest in the problems of this community. He stressed the rapid and continuous growth of the Lemon Grove area, the triple increase in population during the last five years.

NOT WANTED

Pity the poor Bureau of Reclamation! It has—or at least it thinks it knows where it can get—$48 million dollars or so to spend on dams and power plants and such on the Kings River in Fresno County. But the people who would be the recipients of this lavish generosity want nothing to do with the Bureau and all its works.

It is an unheard-of development!

Speaking before the Public Lands Committee, which is conducting hearings to determine whether the Kings River will be developed locally or in accordance with a scheme presented by the Bureau of Reclamation, Gilbert H. Jetberg of the Fresno Irrigation District had this to say:

"I appear for 35,000 families in the richest agricultural region in the world. We can do a better job locally than the reclamation service of the Department of Interior, and have demonstrated it for the last 30 years. We do not want them and we do not need them in the Kings River area to run our affairs."

It's hard to say just how much of the country's troubles are due to a disposition of people to push their personal problems on to the community, and of communities to push local problems on to the State or National governments. But America grew to greatness when people believed in doing things for themselves. That spirit of independence and local initiative, is still very much alive in Fresno County!

COMP. HEALTH INSURANCE

The current controversy over the Administration's health insurance bill is not whether we shall have health insurance or shall not have it. It is, instead, whether it shall be on a voluntary or a compulsory basis—and whether medicine shall remain free and progressive, or whether it shall be strait-jacketed in political controls.

The American people want health insurance and they are getting it. The statistics, as issued by the Health Insurance Council, are exceedingly impressive. As of last August, more than 61 million Americans were protected against hospital costs; 24 million against surgical bills; and 13 million against medical expenses. It is estimated that by now close to 70 million of us are protected against economic hazards of illness, and that within the next two or three years, 90 million will be protected.

It would be ridiculous to argue that the country has no medical problem. It has, and it is a serious problem. But the point is that, in the normal course of events, and by purely voluntary means, we are gradually solving it.

As was stated before, within two or three years over half of the people of the nation will be protected with voluntary health insurance. This means, then, that the Government is going to step in on behalf of the minority rather than the majority.

Of course, this is the day of the minority, but it must be remembered that this country was founded and to all appearances is still operating on the premise that majority rules.

Why should the greater majority of us be penalized because the balance is either too lazy or unfortunate to insure its health? A perfect example of government's intervention in the practice of medicine can be found in Great Britain. The emphasis intended or not, has swerved from quality to quantity. Doctors in England, and we believe it's through no fault of their own, have been forced to adopt production-line methods in their care of patients.

To put the Government into the picture of medicine would create an infinitely worse problem than the one we are trying to solve now. In other words mass-medicine—which Britain has, and we will have if the compulsory bill goes through—is inferior medicine. Under the voluntary system, we are getting the highest quality of service, and are also getting an increasing quantity of service—Courtland, N. Y. Standard.

Sparks

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORAS

California is so crowded with newcomers from other States that one might suppose that cities and towns in the Midwest and East are rapidly becoming ghost villages. It isn't so, however. The need for new homes and schools and streets to accommodate a rapidly growing population may be exaggerated in California, but it exists in varying extent practically every place else in the U. S. A.

The reason for it is that people insist on having babies. Back in the Thirties, all the learned prophets were firmly convinced that perpetuating the species, like pioneering, was just about passe in America. They couldn't have been more wrong.

The delivery room assembly lines have chalked up a record average of three and a half million births a year for the past three years—a production increase of one million babies a year over pre-war figures.

Interestingly, marriages, which reached a peak in 1946 of 2,300,000 slipped back in 1949 to the 1940 level of 1,600,000. The fact that there has been no corresponding break in the baby boom is proof that the old-fashioned large family is in favor again. Perhaps because there is such an investment these days in bassinets, baby carriages, formula equipment, snow suits, auto beds, etc., many modern parents figure it would be wasteful not to get full use of the equipment.

Over the last five years, population in the United States has increased by ten and a half million, and according to present prospects, will increase by 8 million more in another five years. This added population means that the market for homes, furniture, cooking utensils, television sets, clothes, and just about everything one can think of, means, too, that pressures for bigger schools, more streets and roads, expanding city services, won't diminish.

The biggest single beneficiary of Mr. and Mrs. America's fondness for the patter of tiny feet is the housing industry. The home building boom, which started when the war ended, shows no sign of leveling off. Last year saw a record 1,025,000 dwellings started. Construction was begun on an average of 80,000 new homes a month during December, January and February, as against only 50,000 during the same months a year ago.

It's questionable, though, whether the usual small home commonly built today is adequate. Most builders are concentrating on one and two bedroom homes, with dining rooms compressed into alcove size. That kind of a home wouldn't have done for grandma's family, nor will it do at the rate families are increasing in members today.

The higher birth rate is bringing problems, many of them extremely difficult of solution. But it's also bringing opportunities. The Depression economists never believed would ever knock on America's door again.

Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

Clanging and lighting up like a pin ball machine with its wires crossed, California's political tide board has turned itself inside out with the announcement that colorful United States Senator Sheridan Downey has retired from the political wars—and it isn't likely that the odds will steady until the upheaval subsides.

Hospitalized by peptic ulcers and denied the opportunity of waging his usual all-out, often flamboyant type of campaign Downey has bowed to his physician's advice to live "much less active life for a year." At the same time, California's senior Senator has tossed his support to Manchester Boddy, publisher and principal writer of the Los Angeles Daily News.

The new line-up in the U. S. Senate fight very well could precipitate as rugged a contest as California has seen in many a year. Manchester Boddy certainly has no novice to the field of politics, and politicians agree that he will prove a hard-hitting vigorous campaigner of real ability and purpose.

On the other side of the Democratic fence, Helen Gahagan Douglas is a sincere and impassioned defender of the extreme left wing whose vote-appeal is considerable.

And still another factor in the Democratic picture is State Senator Earl Desmond of Sacramento, a campaign veteran of many years standing.

Entered on the Republican ticket is Congressman Richard Nixon, a staunch conservative of unquestioned integrity and real ability. It was due in large part to Nixon's efforts that Alger Hiss was convicted. Nixon probably will have a clear field on the Republican slate.

The political implications stemming from Downey's withdrawal decision are many. Downey was favored to win in a bid for reelection, although it was conceded that Mrs. Douglas would make a hot fight of it for the Democratic nomination. Nixon, most politicians figured had only an outside chance of beating Downey at the November General Election as Senator Downey had strong support in circles which normally would come to Nixon's aid. For Downey was staunch in his stand against Bureau of Reclamation rule of the valleys and federal seizure of California's tidelands.

Before the political tide board flashes steady odds on the Senate race, however, it will have to be determined if Nixon is able to solidify an alliance with the many normally conservative elements that were supporting Downey, or whether Mr. Boddy or Mrs. Douglas will prove popular enough in the Northern part of the State to swing the election.

At any rate, it will be no wishy-washy "me-too" battle. California voters seem destined to have an opportunity to make a clear cut choice on the important issues of the times as put forth by earnest, colorful, highly-capable candidates.

WHO'S Crippled?

SUCCESS STORY OF THE MONTH

It took Bernice Smith of Enterprise, Ore., nearly 20 years to qualify for her first salaried job, and the process included not only education, but repeated surgery and hospitalization in order to overcome a crippling handicap.

Her painful battle was undertaken in opposition to the advice of family and friends and at times she appeared doomed to defeat, but as she herself puts it: "It hasn't been easy but I love it. And to think that in a few months I may be doing some interesting, worthwhile work—to imagine doing what I had given up all hopes of ever doing!"

Because Bernice Smith has overcome odds that to another might have seemed insuperable, the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults has presented her its "Who's Crippled?" citation. The ceremony conferring the citation was held by the Oregon Society for Crippled Children and Adults in Portland.

In addition to this honor, Miss Smith has been named "Citizen of the Week" by her native state of Oregon and by the city of Portland where she has made her home for the past year while taking her final business school training.

Miss Smith's first job is as assisting secretary-stenographer for the Oregon Society during the 1950 Easter Seal campaign, a job which enables her to help others crippled as she herself has been.

First afflicted with rheumatoid arthritis when she was 15, Miss Smith was completely immobilized within three months. Three years later, she underwent her first surgery and was able to return to her high school studies in her home town of Enterprise for the next three years.

Again at the age of 21 her ailment became progressively worse until she was confined entirely to a wheel chair and became a helpless cripple for the next 19 years. In the fall of 1947, the executive director for the Oregon Society for Crippled Children interested himself in her case and learned that through surgery, Miss Smith's condition could be considerably helped. In spite of the advice of relatives and friends to avoid this treatment, she entered the Emmett Hospital in Portland and underwent orthopedic surgery which was made possible by the financial assistance of the Oregon Society. Additional surgery was performed in January, 1948, and a long period of treatment ensued during which it was made possible for Miss Smith to get about on crutches.

Fractures of several bones made two subsequent periods of hospitalization necessary, but on Nov. 15, 1948, she was able to begin a course in business administration and stenography in Portland.

Today, at 41, a newcomer in the business world, Miss Smith says in spite of the fact she may need still more surgery to improve her condition, "The future is like a many-sided castle with myriad doors to be opened. That's how it feels to be walking again."

BY TRIXIE TREGANZA

THE WESTERN PHOEBE

Says Phoebe, Sayornis sayus, Western Phoebe, according to bird lovers, is a "wee bad colored thing." Its favorite nesting place is under the eaves, in the cliffs or under bridges.

The Phoebe is found east of the Rockies, north to southern Canada and winters in the southern section of the United States. The male does not dance a close attendance upon his mate while she is sitting. Indeed, I am sure he often keeps his mate informed of any danger by that penetrating chup noise.

The nest of this bird is made of mud, grasses and moss plastered to the wall. A pair of Phoebes have been using our eaves for a nesting place for the past several years. They have given the place a once-over already this year. From four to five white eggs are laid and ready to hatch about early May. They usually lay more than one brood a year.

Says Phoebe for all its depressed spirits, is an active bird. Taking station on a fence post or stalk, it waits for passing insects and sallies out after them in good form and grace. If local trade is poor, the bird makes fluttering excursions over the field, snapping right and left at humble quarry, and returning to get the tail and render mournful thanks.

Insects constitute the birds exclusive diet except in winter, when under the spell of adverse weather, dried berries and seeds are sometimes taken. Flies, butterflies, moths, wasps, and smaller wild bees are the staples of diet; but beetles, especially ground beetles are largely sought.

The Phoebe is found east of the Rockies, north to southern Canada and winters in the southern section of the United States. The male does not dance a close attendance upon his mate while she is sitting. Indeed, I am sure he often keeps his mate informed of any danger by that penetrating chup noise.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

SAFETY IN THE GARDEN

Insecticides will protect your garden from invading insects, but don't let your family become innocent bystanders. Farm Advisor Bernard J. Hall gave this word of warning today to home gardeners using poisoned bait sprays.

Most of the stomach poisons, and many of the contact insecticides are harmful, and sometimes even fatal, to humans, livestock, cats, dogs, chickens and bees. Use them with great care.

Keep poisoned bait containers out of reach of children and pets. Take special care to wash thoroughly after handling, mixing and applying poisonous insecticides. Do not inhale more than absolutely necessary.

Wash every piece of equipment well after spraying including the mixing spoons and containers. Wash out the sprayer with plenty of water.

Home gardeners with spray problems can obtain directions in a booklet of the College of Agriculture called "Ridding the Garden of Common Pests." Copies are available at the Agricultural Extension Service Office, Room 404 U. S. Customs Building, San Diego.

"ENJOY TURKEY ANYTIME" CAMPAIGN

Turkey producers of San Diego County in co-operation with Agricultural Extension Service, have planned an intensive educational program to promote the use of turkey the year around, according to Farm Advisor, R. H. Adolph. Half turkeys and turkey parts will be featured as important ways that turkey meat can be served economically.

The program received its start at a special demonstration luncheon which was held at the San Diego Gas and Electric Company. Forthcoming events will be leader training demonstrations to be held April 18, 19 and 20. A special exhibit including ways to prepare and cook turkey parts and halves will be presented at the "Spring Fair" to be held April 2 to April 30. The months intensive program will be climaxed by a "Turkey Trek" of business and professional leaders of San Diego on May 3, at which time a trip is planned. All phases of the turkey industry will be visited on this trek. A highlight of this eventful day will be the serving of a turkey luncheon at which time preparation and cooking of turkey halves and parts will be demonstrated.

4-H NEWS NOTES

The Kiwanis Club of Lemon Grove is sponsoring the development of a 4-H agricultural club. J. C. Pickens, chairman of the Kiwanis Agricultural Committee is co-ordinating plans for club organization.

TOMATO FRUIT SETTING

Tomato fruit setting with hormones for the spring crop will be discussed at the following four Agricultural Extension Service meetings by Bernard J. Hall, Farm Advisor.

Monday, April 17—Jaekel and Rogers Ranch, Highway 101, Chula Vista, 2 p. m.

Tuesday, April 18—Stuart Farms, 3 miles north of Ocean-side, 10 a. m.

Thursday, April 20—Fred Yasukochi Ranch, San Luis Rey, 10 a. m.

Thursday, April 20—George Inada, Winter Warm, 2 p. m. Results from field trials from L. Walker, Encanto; William D. Robinson, Bonita; Yoshimoto, San Luis Rey ranches will be presented.

Pepper Fertilizer combination in field trials will be outlined. Vegetable growers are invited to attend the meetings.

4-H INDUSTRY TOURS

Over 250 4-H Club members and leaders participated in the 4-H Industry Tour, Tuesday, April 4.

4-H Club groups gathered at Balboa Park at 10 a. m. for group tour directions. The various groups visited the Van Camp Sea Food Company Plant, Cudahy Packing Company, Hages Ice Cream and Dairy Products plant, Challenge Cream and Butter Association, Mrs. Conkling's Bakery, Arden Farms Company and the County Health Department at Civic Center.

Following the tours, all groups gathered at the Park for lunch together and to visit the San Diego Zoo in the afternoon. The very excellent group tour arranged by the various food processing plants and the County Health Department made the 4-H Industry Tour one of the outstanding club events of the year, according to Dan Close, Farm Advisor in charge of 4-H Club work in San Diego County.

Many Teachers Enjoy Holiday

During last week's spring vacation in the Lemon Grove School District, many teachers and administrators took advantage of the closed classrooms and spring weather to journey through many parts of the Southwest and enjoy the scenery offered by this grand country. Others attended educational conferences which were scheduled in Southern California during the vacation week.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Netzeley and family journeyed to Arizona and Boulder Dam, camping at Borrego Springs en route. On the return trip they visited Las Vegas in Nevada. Mr. and Mrs. Melton Mason enjoyed the wonders of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, as did Mrs. Marie Adams, who also took in the Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico during the week. Mrs. Lauderdale reports that she and her family enjoyed the Laguna Mountains, as did Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Goodall, who visited both Coyamaca, with a group of Girl Scouts, and Borrego with another group of youngsters. Mr. and Mrs. Covey also enjoyed the mountains of the back country.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Miller spent six days at Borrego Springs, and the desert was also visited by Rev. and Mrs. Mulkey and children and Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers. Mrs. Grace Burks and her family spent part of the vacation period at Pine Hills Lodge at Julian.

Mrs. John Jensen, with her husband and son, Miss Frances Read and Olive Read, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. William Vick and family, and Miss Lavancha Bauman spent the week in Los Angeles and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Tait were among the many who took advantage of the desert climate. Clarence Allen and family traveled to the Borrego Desert, Salton Sea, Palm Springs and returned via the coast route.

Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Solleder visited Hollywood, where Mr. Solleder served on a panel at the annual conference of Elementary School Principals and District Superintendents, in co-operation with the California Elementary School Principals Association. He discussed the educational program for seventh and eighth grades. Also attending the conference from Lemon Grove were Ben Schei and Arthur Thomas.

Many teachers took advantage of Business Education Day on Tuesday which was sponsored by the San Diego Chamber of Commerce. It was made possible through the co-operation of numerous businesses and industrial concerns for the purpose of bringing to educators in our county an opportunity to see, at first hand, business, business management and industrial activities in this area, as well as to have the opportunity to discuss with management business and economic practices.

A full day was provided by these concerns, beginning at 9:30 a. m. and ending about 4:30. Luncheons were served to all guests. Mrs. Nancy Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. Netzeley and Mrs. Loy Holmquist were the guests of the Qualitee Dairy Company, where, after a complete tour of the plant they were shown an excellent movie on the milk industry and its significance. Mrs. Evelyn Lauritzen was the guest of the San Diego Gas and Electric Company.

Junior High News

Presenting an intriguing play on Central and Southern Europe, under the supervision of Bernard Davis, the 32 members of the 7.2 class entertained about 50 guests, both adults and children, on Friday evening, March 31.

Ronnie Netzeley was announcer for the committee presenting the scenes depicting dancing in Greece and Portugal and singing of native songs in Spain.

Also enjoyed by all was the food typical of the various countries, which was served to the audience by the committee members.

The following students participated in the program: Greece was represented by Colleen Day, Albert De Mars, George Tsongas, Joyce and Jean Dunford, and Lucretia Slagill; Portugal was presented by Barbara Clifton, Lola Nowlin, and Nancy Stevens; Italy's scene was portrayed by Travis Keeton, Richard Secor, Jackie Carroll, Dale Klabund, and Ralph Kehrensburg; Spain was presented by Janice Yeargin, Gloria Werr, Jim Swinnery, Richard Knapp; French scenes starred Margaret Schlieff, Carol Dennstedt, David McCoy, Beverly Loper and Richard Denton; Switzerland was pictured by Norma Craddock, Janet Achilles and Billy Carman; and Howard Martinsen and Glenn Brown gave summary reports.

Spring Meeting of Teachers Held

The third quarterly meeting of teachers and administrators of the Lemon Grove School District was held last evening in the school cafeteria at 7:30. Byron L. Netzeley, district superintendent of schools, and S. K. Solleder, director of education, acted as co-chairmen for the district meeting.

Preliminary plans for the 1950-51 school year were discussed by the group, as were possible changes and revisions in the salary schedule.

Continued Plans for May Day

Joyce Herbert will preside as queen over the gala May Day festivities which will be held at the Lemon Grove School, May 1. Charles Kramer will serve as Prince, and all the sixth grade girls, both from Mrs. Pauline Miller's room and Mrs. Loy Holmquist's room will attend the queen as ladies of the court.

Both Joyce Herbert and Charles Kramer were chosen by the sixth graders in an election. Acting as announcer for the entire program is Robert Fowles.

Rehearsals are underway in all the grades for the colorful dances that the children will present in celebrating the California Centennial.

The program will be held from 1:30 to 3:30 in the afternoon of the first day of May, on the lawn in front of the Administration Building at the school. There will be seating arranged for spectators in School Lane facing the building.

Vista La Mesa School

The following story of school activities was written by Johanna Correll of the fourth grade:

The fourth grade class at Vista La Mesa is studying about Mexico. A few days ago, Mrs. Correll, our teacher, said we might make some Mexican dolls.

The dolls are all 14 inches high. They are a Charro, a China Poblana, a Peon and a Matorador. The frames were made from coat hangers, covered with paper strips. Some of the girls made pretty clothes for them, and the boys made stands for the figures. These dolls help the fourth graders to see how the different groups in Mexico dress.

Stop When the School Bus Does

Byron Netzeley, superintendent of the Lemon Grove School District, has just released the following in regard to stopping when a school bus is taking on or unloading school children:

Many of our citizens are unaware of the state regulations governing traffic in the vicinity of a parked school bus. Here in Lemon Grove, because of the size of the community, many buses are engaged in taking children to and from school, both in the elementary and high schools.

California law clearly states that any vehicle following or approaching a school bus must come to a complete stop and wait until the bus has loaded or unloaded its passengers and is again in motion. Most of us are fully acquainted with the regulation about stopping behind the bus when it is boarding or discharging passengers, but sometimes we unintentionally break the law by running past the stopped bus when it is traveling in the opposite direction.

The California State Highway Patrol has instructed all drivers of school buses to take the license numbers of all cars which violate this section of the motor vehicle code and to report these license numbers to the Highway Patrol.

In order to save ourselves a citation and fine, and, much more important, to save, possibly, the life of a child, let us pledge ourselves to total enforcement of the statute. Traffic fatalities can be reduced only if all drivers and pedestrians co-operate. The children in our schools are learning the rules of safety; surely the adult world should be setting the proper example for them to follow.

Car Pushes House Aside

The home of Otto P. Dodson, 7775 Jamacha road, was pushed off its foundation when a car driven by Robert Goins, 7770 North avenue crashed into it.

The car left the road west of the Dodson place and tearing through a steel wire fence, hit the corner of the house pushing it several feet off its foundation.

Several people were sitting in the living room when the accident occurred. Dodson said he ran out side as soon as the house settled down after the crash, and found Goins still sitting in his car.

The house was so badly damaged that a major rebuilding job will be necessary to put the building back into livable shape.

No one was seriously hurt in the accident. Calvin Kerley, a passenger in the car suffered possible internal injuries, and Mrs. Louise Hairell received a slight facial cut.

Near Crash Causes Melée

When Robert F. Larkin, 8070 Lincoln St., and two of his buddies were driving in to San Diego about midnight, Monday, a car assertedly driven by James F. Finney, without lights, drove onto the highway from a side street near Pringle's Shell Service station. To avoid being hit Larkin swerved his car into the station yard.

He reports that he got out to get the license number of the other car, when Finney allegedly attacked him with a wrench, hitting him five times on the head and face. Taken to La Mesa Hospital by sheriffs, seven stitches were required to close one wound.

Larkin is able to be out but says he is not prosecuting the case.

IT'S A BOY

A son, Raymond Charles, who weighed 7 pounds, 3 ounces, was born Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Miller, 2336 Loma drive, at Mercy Hospital. Mother and babe are doing fine.

A son, Robert Stuart, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Garner, 4051 Marion St., last Friday. He weighed five pounds 12 ounces.

Last year, 269,000 pedestrians were injured in the United States.

Recruiting More Red Crossers to Carry on Work

To bolster Red Cross services and increase the number of workers available to carry on the chapter's year-around program, a campaign to recruit more Red Crossers is now going on. Mrs. Albert Jones, chairman of all volunteer services, has appointed Mrs. Albert Ward to head a recruitment committee which will interview prospective workers each weekday from one to four at the headquarters in Balboa Park.

"We particularly need more drivers for our Red Cross Motor Service," Mrs. Jones stated, "as well as St. Aides who serve as receptionists, typists and clerks both in the hospital and at Chapter headquarters."

Men and women with a talent for art or craft are badly needed also to help convalescents at the Naval Hospital hobby workshop. The Navy has provided us with a completely equipped workshop but unfortunately we don't have enough volunteers to man it full time. Red Cross would certainly like to hear from craft workers who can give a day a week to this vital service.

Those interested in serving with Red Cross are invited to call at the Volunteer Office Monday through Friday, April 10-21 from 1 to 4 p. m. for interview. No appointment is necessary. A special training course will be given to all Red Cross volunteers before they begin their service. San Diego Chapter headquarters is located in Balboa Park, a block north of the Zoo Cafe. For further information, prospective workers are asked to call Franklin 8871, or write Red Cross, Box 1028, San Diego, 12.

Weekend returns on the 1950 Red Cross campaign stand at $228,319.80. With a countywide goal of $320,000, that means only 71.4% of the funds needed to carry on San Diego Chapter's program has been raised so far. Solicitation will continue in all divisions until all the territory is covered.

Major General William T. Clement, USMC, and Mrs. Josephine Hearle, Red Cross field director, delivered a check for $2,645.99 from the personnel of the Marine Recruit Depot to chairman J. L. Haugh at Red Cross campaign headquarters. "This check represents the 100% contributions of every Marine and civilian physically present on our post," General Clement stated. "Since it totals more than one dollar from each person, all of us at the Marine Recruit Depot now hold memberships in San Diego Chapter of the American Red Cross. We hope that our support of the 1950 fund demonstrates how much we appreciate Red Cross services and all the organization has done for us locally."

In accepting the check, Mr. Haugh expressed his congratulations to the Armed Forces division of the campaign organization which has turned in $27,000 to date, 108% of its quota. Red Cross field director Tom Goff, who is in charge of the San Diego district office, is chairman of this division.

General Charles F. B. Price, USMC (ret.), vice chairman of the County division of the current Red Cross campaign, reports that membership in the 100% club is increasing among county communities. The roster now includes: Campo, Coronado, Del Mar, Descanso, Lake Henshaw, Lemon Grove, Mesa Grande, Miramar, Potrero, Poway, Solana Beach and Santa Ysabel.

Coronado is the first community with a quota of more than $1000 to go over the top. With a goal of $9000, more than 102% has been reached so far. Percentage-wise, Rolando is still in the lead with 218%. Runners up are Descanso and Lemon Grove, both with over 150%, and workers are still soliciting. Del Mar, where Mrs. Waldron Cheyney and Mrs. W. D. Bassett are co-chairman, has reported 120% and is still going strong.

Member British Admiralty Here

Lt. Com. Basil Rowley R.N., a member of the British admiralty delegation in Washington D. C., is visiting for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. B. Baker, 7654 Central Ave.

Com. Rowley is attending a scientific conference on Radar in collaboration with the American Navy. He expects to return to Washington Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Baker met Mr. Rowley's parents while in England last summer and were entertained by the Rowleys in Washington on their way over.

Camp Fire Girls

Local Camp Fire Girls had sold 1700 boxes of doughnuts in their last report on the sale to get funds for summer camp.

Bob-o-link Blue Birds went roller skating at Mission Beach Wednesday and on Friday had an Easter Egg hunt at the home of Mrs. A. M. Lizama, 2491 Massachusetts.

Juniors Hear Oakley Players

Lenore Oakley, director of voice and drama at the Southern California Music Co. in San Diego, was the guest speaker at the program meeting of the Forward Club Juniors Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Oakley presented two of the Oakley players, Eddie Martin and Margrethe Myer who gave delightful impersonations in a skit "Shades of Mary Morris," written by Mary Morris, a teacher here in 1864.

They also presented a comedy skit, "Good Listener."

The club has voted $15 to a campership for a Camp Fire Girl and $15 to Scout Troop 228, which they sponsor.

A large bundle of clothing was sent recently to the Alamo Indian Reservation.

Mrs. Dewitt Mytinger, chairman, announced that the Mother's Day Tea would be held on May 19 with Mrs. E. A. Ross, tea chairman, and Mrs. E. H. Jennings responsible for decorations.

The club voted to send the president, Mrs. David Hentigan, to the annual C.F.W.C. Junior convention at Sacramento on May 5 and 6.

June 16 and 17 were the dates announced for the summer conference at Casa de Manana, La Jolla.

The Executive Board will meet Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Ralph Dewey, 2800 Cypress.

A very welcome guest was Mrs. Eric Hutchinson of England, house guest of Mrs. Bill Kellison. Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Jinnett, Mrs. Alan Giles and Mrs. Charles Whitlock.

Ed Secora Out for Treasurer

Ed Secora, president of the Casa de Ora Civic Association of Spring Valley, is a candidate for the office of County Treasurer.

Secora, a Navy veteran, is married and has one son. He has been a resident of the County and a tax paying homeowner since 1938.

He is a member of Branch 9, Fleet Reserve Association; the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; the Retired Officers' Association and a Boy Scout committeeman.

Secora is a public accountant and holds a university degree in business administration and municipal finance. He has also studied law.

"Handling of taxpayer's money requires proper administration and not politics," comments Secora. "We must return to the age of sacred trust and obligation."

"I am seeking this office because I sincerely feel that the residents of our County want better government at lower cost."

Music Festival at Ford Bowl

"The Fourth Annual Music Festival presented by the Catholic schools in the city and county of San Diego will take place on Sunday April 30, at 2:30 p. m. in the Ford Bowl, Balboa Park.

Max Dalby, director of the festival throughout its history, has arranged a versatile program of instrumental and vocal music with the fine co-operation of the school principals and music directors.

Participating will be 1173 students from 24 schools in San Diego County. Many months of careful preparation will culminate in program numbers by the 100-piece All-City Catholic Parochial School Band, the All-City Catholic School Orchestra, the Mercy College of Nursing Chorus, the Senior High School Girls' Chorus, the Junior High Girls' Chorus and the Pahochial School Boys' Chorus."

After the Junior Choir of Congregational Church has finished rehearsals next Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Wally Toomire and Mrs. Harold Hensley will treat the young folks to a party. Later in the afternoon, the Intermediate Choir will meet at the Toomire home, 1646 Cameron, to make a recording of the Holy City, which they sang for Easter. Mrs. Toomire has games planned and will serve refreshments.

If there is one enterprise on earth that the quitter should leave alone, it is advertising. Advertising does not jerk... it pulls. It pulls gently at first but the pull is steady. It increases day by day, year by year, until it exerts an irresistible power.—John Wanamaker.

Local Teacher Tells of Interesting Places on 1900 Mile Trip

Mrs. Ovella Mason, teacher in Lemon Grove School and her husband, Milton, covered 1900 miles during Easter vacation and report this was an ideal time of year to make a trip. Mrs. Mason describes some of the most interesting and inspiring places visited.

Near Las Vegas, Nevada, the Valley of Fire has blood-red sandstone formations, grotesque and realistic, which create a Wizard-of-Oz atmosphere. A tussle between erosion and fiery red stone resulted in a holocaust of towering shapes and bizarre faces. There are petrified trees and atlatl rock where ancient animals came to drink, and have the deadly atlatl thrown at them by Indian hunters whose bragging is still to be seen in the petroglyphs they carved on the nearby stone surfaces.

The Lost City museum and ruins of a prehistoric Indian pueblo were most interesting. We also visited Moapa Valley, an oasis in the desert, where is located the Moapa Indian Reservation.

Boulder City, a man-made oasis in the heart of a barren desert is one of the most unusual towns in America, with tree lined streets, beautifully landscaped. The homes are modern in every respect. All land is owned by the Federal government.

Hoover Dam, the highest in the world rising 727 feet above bed rock, is 650 feet thick at the base. The 45 foot crest forms a highway bridge from wall to wall of the gorge, 1180 feet in length. A guided tour through the vast interior of the structure proved educational. High as a 60-story skyscraper, it is more than a quarter of a mile across the top and generates more power than Niagara Falls and Muscle Shoals combined. The museum is also interesting.

Beautiful, blue Lake Meade, largest man-made lake in the world, has 550 miles of shoreline. This tremendous reservoir, created by Hoover Dam, nestles peacefully among the magnificent canyons along the Colorado River.

Grand Canyon is the world's most spectacular illustration of erosion of the combined action of a great river, rain, wind and frost. It is a gigantic chasm, 217 miles long, 4 to 18 miles wide, and a mile deep. At its bottom the Colorado River rushes to the sea. Rising from its depths are whole mountain ranges, their tops only slightly below the rim of the gorge.

Over the rock temples and into the depths of the chasm, spreads a sea of ever changing colors. By day it is the home of molten color; by moonlight it is a blue mystery. Sunset deepens the reds and browns, followed by weird blue shadows making a veritable oil painting. We were fortunate in experiencing all the changing moods of the canyon. Whatever its mood, it always grips and humbles and uplifts—here is the ultimate in silent grandeur and beauty.

In Painted Desert, nature wielded a reckless brush painting the mountains of sand to glorious hues.

The suspension bridge across the Little Colorado River is a fine work of engineering.

Tuba City is a modern Indian village in the Hopi Indian Reservation.

Between Flagstaff and Prescott the famous Oak Creek Canyon is wooded and of vividly colored rock formations. This rare beauty of fiery red coloring, green woodlands, and magnificent lofty peaks gives the Canyon an individuality all its own, even though it is situated

Public Invited to Hear Talk on Gems

Leland Quick editor of the Lapidary Journal, Hollywood, will talk on "America's Third Largest Hobby," or the art of cutting and polishing precious and semi-precious stones. At the meeting of the San Diego Mineral and Gem Society, in the Natural History Museum Balboa Park, at 8 p. m.

For a number of years, Mr. Quick has written for Desert Magazine under the column heading "Amateur Gem Cutter." In April, 1947, Mr. Quick published the first edition of Lapidary Journal, a bi-monthly magazine devoted to lapidary work and jewelry crafts.

Mr. Quick is looking forward to addressing the San Diego Mineral and Gem Society. His lecture not only will cover lapidary work, the fastest growing hobby in the United States, but also will be given before the largest mineral and gem society in the world.

The public is welcome to the lecture, for which no admission will be charged.

TEXAS A & M GRADS MEET

Former students of A & M College of Texas, living in San Diego and Imperial counties, will gather at the home of Major and Mrs. J. F. Blanton, Pepper Dr., El Cajon, on April 21 to carry on a tradition, 47 years old. All A & M men and wives and guests are urged to attend. Following the Muster, a dinner dance will be held in El Cajon at Casper's Rancho. Make reservations with Major Blanton.

In 1949, 9,350 pedestrians were killed in the United States.

Two Speeches Dedicate VFW Hall

There is to an approximate total of 14,000 persons, living in about 3000 homes, and supporting a materially increased business area. Mr. Dorman emphasized that the community has made such progress only through the cooperation of civic minded groups such as the VFW, and that this growth is a challenge towards even more work and greater progress in making the community of Lemon Grove a better place in which to live.

He mentioned that Lemon Grove was one of the first county communities to adopt zoning ordinances, that it is the site of Homeland Township Justice Court, that a modern sewage system and better streets program have been developed, that a new postoffice building has been built and increased postal services have been obtained, that banking facilities have been established by the First National Bank, and that additional public transportation facilities have been provided.

Mr. Dorman stated that at the present time the Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with the Fire Commissioners, is proposing and promoting a much needed Fire Protection District, with an election to be held June 6 for the purpose of determining whether or not the community wants a full fledged protection, and for the purpose of issuing $35,010 in bonds for the immediate development of a fire house and purchase of equipment. A number of VFW members have participated in this important program.

Mr. Dorman stressed another project which needs the immediate attention of the community, the increased development of the Community Center program under the provisions of a recently passed county ordinance.

Mr. Dorman's closing challenge was inspired by the new VFW building itself. He commended the Post upon their furthering of a new movement, that of beautification and modernization of existing structures, residences, public buildings and stores.

Parental Interference

'Sorry' Won't Help

Fragile Reputation

By Will Barnard, L.L.B.

May a Father Mix into the Affairs of His Married Daughter?

Despite parental objections, a married man off with a garage mechanic and got married. She soon found out that married life wasn't as pleasant as she had expected, and in three weeks she had moved back home. Her husband thereupon sued her father for alienation of affections.

claiming that he had talked the girl into believing she had made a mistake. But the court refused to hold the father liable. The judge said that parents have a right to "butt into" their daughter's marriage, if they do so sincerely out of love for their child, not hate for her husband. "From whom should a girl seek advice," exclaimed His Honor, "if not from her own parents?"

Does It Help to Say You're Sorry—After Shooting Somebody?

A man and his wife began arguing about household expenses one evening, and the fight waxed hotter and hotter. Finally the wife seized a gun and fired. The bullet missed her husband, flew out the window, and felled the man next door, injuring him fatally. The woman was arrested and brought to trial on a homicide charge. In an effort to minimize her guilt, the woman told the court that she had apologized to the neighbor's widow—and even offered to pay the funeral expenses. But the court ruled out this "irrelevant" evidence and found the woman guilty as charged. The judge said that repentant words don't help at all—after the criminal deed is done.

May a School Superintendent Be Fired if Involved in a Scandal?

A school superintendent in a certain town was indicted on a charge of immorality. Without waiting to see if he would be found guilty, the school board removed the man from his position. He promptly challenged the validity of this move, on the ground that a person should be considered innocent until found guilty. However, the court upheld the board's action. The judge said that the scandal alone, whether justified or not, was enough to impair the superintendent's usefulness to the community. "Not only a good character," said the judge, "but also a good reputation is essential in such a position."

May You Denounce An Auto Dealer For "Selling Lemons"?

A woman bought a car from a dealer. Although the car worked all right, she soon decided that she didn't like it. One morning, the woman hung several lemons on the sides of the vehicle, along with signs warning the public against buying other "lemons" from this particular dealer. Soon the man filed suit for a stop-order. At the hearing the woman insisted that she couldn't be prevented from speaking her mind, but the court ordered her to cease her campaign. While admitting some judicial disagreement on the point, His Honor decided that he should stop the woman's deliberate attack on the dealer's business.

Outset proceedings were filed against a certain judge, on grounds of "habitual drunkenness." It seems that His Honor would go on an all-day spree once a month, and often had to be helped home. At the hearing he said his drinking wasn't "habitual"—because he often stayed sober for weeks at a time! But the court ruled that he wasn't fit for his job. The court said that "drunkenness is a habit when it happens this often—even though there may be intervals of sobriety!"

There has been a fine attendance at the revival meetings conducted each evening and on Sundays by Rev. Mulkey. Special church groups have been appointed to sponsor each evening meeting: Thursday—Women's Missionary Union and El Cajon Mission; Friday—Sunday School; Saturday—Veterans and Service Men; Monday—Brotherhood; Tuesday—Family; Wednesday—Training Union. A special effort will be made on Sunday to get every one out to Sunday School. The goal has been set at 301. Families not attending elsewhere are cordially invited to Sunday School and church services.

Nazis' 'Process of Selectivity' Outsmarted by Polish Scientist

By BILLY ROSE

Whenever I'm in the mood for gargantuan gab, I like myself over to a Russian tea room near Carnegie hall where refugees of a dozen nations sit around and give out with tall talk about the old days behind them and the new days coming up.

To give you a fitting for-instance, the other midnight I heard a macabre yarn from a gent who used to teach science in Warsaw, and while I don't know whether it's history or hokum, it strikes me as being worth my allotment of white space today. . . .

During the last year of the war, there was a small concentration camp in east Germany which had been set up for two purposes: (a) to build an underground machine shop, and (b) to make available the required number of human guinea pigs for certain experiments being conducted by distinguished Nazi scientists.

Billy Rose

By SS STANDARDS, the method of selecting these guinea pigs was scrupulously fair. Each morning before breakfast, the 50 men in each of the wooden barracks would stand at attention until the commandant appeared with a list of their names. He would read off the top name on the list and the prisoner whose name was called would step forward.

The commandant would then hand two small leather disks, one marked with a white circle and the other with a black, to the "trustee" of the barracks for examination. Then the commandant would drop the disks into his hat, and the prisoner would draw one of them.

If he picked the one with the white circle he was safe until his name came up again 50 days later; if he drew the black one, he would be shipped out that Saturday night.

In December of 1944, my tea-room friend—the scientist from Warsaw—was cattle-carred to this concentration camp and assigned to a barrack occupied almost exclusively by captured Russian soldiers. He was asked the usual questions, and when the Russians found the newcomer was a Pole, they quickly let him know that the fraternity of races as preached by Moscow was confined to Kremlin publicity handouts.

And when he further admitted he had never joined the Party—not for any big ideological reason, but simply because he was a scientist and had no interest in politics—the Red army men decided he was an enemy of the state and began to plot against him.

THE POLE, however, was more worried about the disks in the hat than the whisperings going on about him. Under the lottery system, it would be almost two months before his name was called, and since news had filtered into camp that the Russian forces were only a few weeks away, he kept telling himself that liberation might come before the day for the drawing. But as the days turned into weeks, and still no sound of far-away cannon, he resigned himself to taking his 50-50 chances with the hat.

The night before the fateful morning, the scientist was lying awake in his bunk when he felt a tug at his blanket. It was a young Czech who had been badly mistreated by the "trustee," and who had often mumbled about getting even.

According to the kid, the comrades had figured out a plot to make certain the Pole would be shipped off to the Nazi experimenters. The "trustee" had cut a leather disk from his shoe and made a black circle on it, and when the commandant asked him to examine the disk, his plan was to palm the one with the white circle and substitute his own, so that either would mean death to the non-Party man.

For a long moment, the scientist looked up at the flat ceiling of the bunk above him. "Thank you," he finally said to his friend, "I think I'll be able to manage."

Next morning when his name was called, he saw the "trustee" palm the white-circled disk and substitute another. But he pretended not to notice, and when the commandant held out his hat he smiled and selected a disk. "White or black," he said. "I'm going to have one good meal in this miserable camp." And before the officer could stop him, he popped the bit of leather into his mouth and swallowed.

The SS man frowned. "Crazy Pole," he said, "what good will that do? There is still a disk left in the hat. If it is black, you picked the white; if it is white, you picked the black."

"That is quite correct, Sir," said the scientist.

WHEN THE CHIPS ARE Down . . .

"When you were in uniform, you heard a lot of chaps say, 'After me—you come first.' But somehow, when the chips were down, these Sad Sacks turned out to be pretty good joes. You found out then it was more like 'one for all and all for one.' Well, that's what's known as 'comradeship'—the kind you find in the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

That "all for one" spirit is pretty important to you as a civilian too. In the V.F.W., it means friends—the kind who like to work together for the general good of all concerned and not just for their own selfish advantages.

The Glass Mask

By Lenore Glenn

W.N.U. SERVICE

CHAPTER I: It was a hot summer day after visiting Todd's nephew, Dyke, at his home, at the Sacramento Hotel, a gay camp, her small daughter, Georgine, made a detour to Vallejo, to pay a brief call on some friends of her father's. It was with some surprise that they found their goal to be a crumbling monument of a Victorian mansion. Once inside and after having met their hostess, the charming Mrs. Peabody, Georgine had a premonition that there was more to the place than met the eye.

CHAPTER II: Mrs. Peabody invited the three of them to stay that night—in fact, she was afraid to stay alone. Next morning at breakfast, Mrs. Peabody told the story of the death of Adeline Tiltit, and the rumors that had connected her death with her husband, Gilbert, who was now in the army. Todd was interested in the story of Adeline Tiltit. While Georgine wanted to leave immediately, Mrs. Peabody asked Todd to hear her story and said he would learn the truth about Adeline's death.

CHAPTER III: Mrs. Peabody told Georgine and Todd the story connected with Adeline Tiltit's death. Todd had heard the story from Mr. Peabody and other property to Judge Tiltit, Horace and Mary Helen, who were now in the army. Mrs. Peabody had one stroke before her death. Gilbert, who was the son of a fortune hunter, was not from a family able to marry Mrs. Peabody until the death of Adeline Tiltit. And the rumors started to spread her death.

CHAPTER IV

"Oh, Todd, if you knew how much I want to," Georgine said under her breath.

He looked at her without touching her. He continued to sit, relaxed and graceful on his uncomfortable perch, hands in the pockets of his tweed trousers. His eyes warmed slowly.

"Then what's to stop us? We can drive in to the county seat this very morning, and apply for the license, and be married here on—what'll it come to, Tuesday? Wait, Georgine. You've got five or six objections. I can see 'em standing in line waiting to be expressed. First, Barby. She'd be in seventh heaven, and you know it, especially if we got Mrs. Peabody to make her that dress; she could be sole attendant at the wedding; and as for school—"

"She's already missed one day," said Georgine dubiously. "Still, I suppose her mother's wedding is as good an excuse as any, though I'd blame myself if she got behind in her work—"

"She's way ahead now, don't you remember?" Todd remarked. "Half her class has been out with German measles, which luckily she didn't get, and they won't be caught up to her for weeks. Might as well give the other little tikes a break! Second objection, clothes. Haven't Mrs. Dillman the key to your cottage? Couldn't you write her and tell her what you want sent up by the first mail?"

"I suppose I could."

"Third, practical difficulties. Well, we have our ration books—"

"No," said Georgine.

"—which you wisely insisted on carrying with us. We'd pay our way, naturally, since there's a waiting list for rooms at the inn, and Mrs. Peabody said more than once that she'd like to rent that extra space on the second floor. The cash might help her out, between you and me."

Georgine shot to her feet. "You mean we'd be staying there?"

He looked at her in honest perplexity. "Why not, Georgine? You are not—is there something that frightens you?"

"Why, you lunk, what do you suppose?" said Georgine furiously. "The house where a murder was committed, and me in the very room where it happened, and the hostess herself scared to stay there!"

"Only when she's alone," Todd said gently.

Georgine deflated suddenly, and sat down again. "It's good of you to keep from laughing," she said, with a shame-faced grin of her own. "Only, you know what a coward I am."

"I know you say so. In this case, though, I hadn't expected you to feel that way, and I'm dunned if I can see why. What is it, the ghost of old Miss Tiltit?"

"Certainly not. I know ghosts don't exist."

"Then," Todd inquired with interest, "what scares you about the dark?"

"Oh—just things, coming at me, and me not able to see them."

"H'm. Does that include one-lunged men?"

"That's a question that hasn't come up yet, and I'll settle it when it does. She felt retored by now, and added with some defiance, 'A ghost is one of the very few things I'm not afraid of.'"

"What are the others?"

"Let's see: horses, cows and people who try to push me around. Of course," Georgine added meticulously, "if the cows turn out to be cross bulls, and the people get actively malicious, they get switched to the other list."

Todd was quivering gently, but his face showed no change. "Look Georgine," he said, "we're not sure, you and I, that there was a murder at all."

"But how does Mrs. Peabody feel?"

"Oh, she thinks someone killed Miss Tiltit, but it wasn't Gilbert," said Todd lightly.

"Lovely. That means there's a murderer still at large."

"Not necessarily. In any case, the affair was over four years ago, and there's been no sign of a repeat performance. It's not dangerous to have to contend with it's obscurity. So, unless that tapping up stairs bothered you actively—"

"How did you know I'd heard tapping?"

"Your prayerful look, dear heart, when Mrs. Peabody mentioned the old lady's case. Where was it, overhead? Must have been. Well, then, the ghost has moved up one flight, and is concerning itself with the furniture in the attic, and would leave your room alone."

"I thought of that this morning," said Georgine seriously. "Surely I'd have felt anything sinister—ah, my friend. Now you are laughing at me."

"Bless you, I am," Todd said. "What it is to look forward to a whole life of enjoyment, all kinds of it. Well, what do you say, Georgine?"

Again she waited for a moment before replying. The March sun beat down on their heads, the fragrance of new grass and flowering bulbs was all about them; a few yards away, just out of earshot of their murmuring voices, the little girls chattered happily. She looked across the street, but she didn't see the old Tiltit house at which she was gazing. She was seeing Todd, woodenly inscrutable of countenance.

"No," said Todd mildly. "I don't want to stay without you."

nance, striding about the camp beside his red-headed nephew. Dyke had shown a great deal of tact, unobtrusively mentioning how much pleasure the boys got out of detective magazines, and how popular Todd's stories were for the relaxation they so badly needed.

All at once she knew why it was that Dyke had suggested they come here. He had known, he must have known, something about the background of the Tiltit family; and with unusual penetration for a young man of twenty-one, he had also known what would set up his uncle again, after that horrible strain on his pride and his self-esteem, Todd reacted peculiarly to strain. He got funny, and, judging by the yells of masculine laughter which had marked his progress among Dyke's friends, yesterday he had been very funny indeed.

If they stayed here, if he got the material for half a dozen stories, and if they were married . . . he would have his mind taken up by two projects in both of which he could feel entirely adequate.

He needs this, Georgine thought, and it's the first thing he's ever asked of me.

It had taken perhaps fifteen seconds for her mind to follow this whole train of thought. She caught her breath, looked at him and smiled.

"You probably know," she said, "that I have a strong instinct against staying, but maybe that's only because I'm such a fool about wanting to be at home. And if we were married—it'd be like coming home. I have an even stronger instinct about getting married to you."

She saw his face relax. Had he wanted it so much, then—so very much? He got to his feet, and bent over to kiss her; it was the lightest touch of lips, but it stung like a bee.

"Dear Georgine," Todd said. "What a nice woman you are. I'll go and talk to Mrs. Peabody, and find out about these licenses."

Georgine watched him crossing the street and going up the preposterous front steps into the preposterous house. The half smile stayed on her lips. Maybe these eight months of engagement hadn't been quite wasted. "What a nice woman you are"—there might once have seemed cold to her, as words of love; now she knew that, from Todd, they equaled the liveliest utterance of Romeo and Tristan and the Song of Solomon.

Several hours later Todd and Georgine came down the steps of the county courthouse. "One o'clock," Todd said. "We just got in under the wire, before the license bureau closed. Shall we finish our business at the jeweler's?"

They crossed the highway toward a row of attractive shops. Todd feeling in his vest pocket; Georgine realized that he must have been carrying her ring around with him for the last month, the half-hoop of sapphires which was to be both engagement and wedding ring, and which had been in his family for years.

"It will have to be engraved," Barby had said gravely, watching her mother try it on for the first time; and it was this operation which was about to be arranged.

The jeweler was busy when they entered his shop; he was talking in low tones to a young woman who leaned on a counter at the rear, her back to them.

The girl murmured something, and turned away with a rattle of wooden bracelets. She tripped toward the front door, humming to herself, studying the showcases as she went; her face was still averted.

Georgine stifled a giggle as she heard Todd begin, "I want to see about having this ring engraved—cut down in size, and we're in a bit of a hurry for it." Bless his heart, he was having a case of wedding excitement, under that impassive manner.

Over luncheon Georgine asked thoughtfully, "Todd, just what is it you're going to do about this case, talk to Mrs. Peabody some more?"

"Not just that, though it'd be damned interesting if she'd expand a little more. I'm going to make some acquaintances around town."

"Oh, just where does that leave us with our hostess?"

"In top billing," Todd said. "I think I got it into her head that I'm no kind of an investigator, in fact that it's unlikely I'd know the truth if I saw it; but I'm not so bad as a male gossip."

"Really, Todd, dear, you are a ghoul," Georgine said.

"What I still don't see is this: people will learn soon enough that we're staying with Mrs. Peabody. What makes you think, if they won't talk to her, that they'll open up to you?"

"I'll do it by implication," said Todd, shamelessly chucking, he tapped himself on the chest. "I'd like your support while I make my first call. Mrs. Peabody suggested it herself, for a starting point; we're going to see Susan Labare."

"Susan—oh, the practical nurse. Yes, she sounds promising. She still keeps tabs on the household, it seems; Mrs. Peabody said last night that the attic skylight is visible from Susan's house, and she's always worrying for fear somebody's up there that shouldn't be. They convinced her that all she saw was the moon on the skylight."

"Is that so?" said Todd with interest. He was silent, digesting this meager piece of information, for most of the nine-mile drive back to Vallejo.

"One of the most enchanting things about this town," said Georgine as he helped her out of the car, "is its compactness. It probably wouldn't take more than twenty minutes to walk the whole length of it."

Mrs. Labare's cottage was of the one-story type; it shone with aggressive cleanliness, not a picket was out of place in the white fence, and the garden was kept under control with a rigid hand.

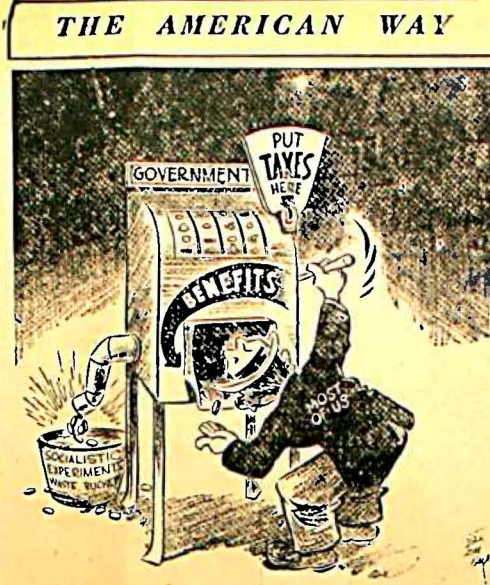

Susan was tall and gaunt, with long arms and powerful-looking hands; dark eyes were sharp under her shock of white hair. "Howdy do?" said Mrs. Labare interrogatively. Her voice issued flatly from the nutcracker conformation of her nose and jaw; somehow it sounded very rural.

"My name's McKinnon," said Todd with his usual ease, "and this is Mrs. Wyeth. Have you by chance heard Mrs. Crane speak of my nephew, Dyke?"

"Oh, him," Mrs. Labare said with interest. "Yeah, sure I have. Up to camp at Sacramento, ain't he?"

"We were passing through, and it seemed a good time to get acquainted with some of Mary Helen's friends. I understand that you've been almost a second mother to her, Mrs. Labare."

It was as easy as that, Georgine thought. Not a word of untruth, a considerable admixture of charm, and here they were chattering with Susan; Todd was, at least; all she herself had to do was sit and look about her with a pleasant expression. She had never seen so many photographs.

In a place of honor, on the center table, was a picture which must have been taken in the early years of the century: a Junoesque woman of about forty in a low-cut evening dress which offered an expanse of neck and shoulders admirably calculated for the display of jewelry. There was plenty of it, too: a pearl dog collar, earrings, brooches, rings on the hand that was poised across the ample bosom, and one or two extra necklaces and chains with pendant jewels.

Georgine found it difficult to take her eyes off this exhibit, and at a pause in the conversation she moved her chair for a better view. Mrs. Labare viewed this with approval. "That's old lady Tiltit," she remarked. "Took her a long time ago, of course. She wasn't so good looking as that, time I come to nurse her."

"May I see?" Todd picked up the photograph. "This is the famous Miss Adeline, is it? I understand you were her mainstay for years. 'Only about four,' Susan said. 'I see. She was very old, wasn't she?'"

"Not for here. Healthy place, Vallejo is."

"So?" Todd said, smiling. "What carried Miss Adeline off so young, then?"

"Stroke," said Mrs. Labare promptly. "Lawsy, when one of them comes, there's not much you can do about it. She'd had one already, you know, and it was to be expected. Peaceful as a deathbed as you ever was at, children all round—not hers, of course, but the family—and off she went to sleep, just like a baby."

"I taken my nap just as usual, layin' down on the couch in the sittin' room, friend two that afternoon. When I went upstairs later she was havin' her nap out, or so I thought. Come about five, I went to shake her, and I seen it wasn't natural sleep, more like coma. She's had her second, I thought." Susie's head jerked up and down abruptly. "Took me ten, fifteen minutes to get hold of the doctor, he was awful busy even then Johnny Crane was."

Do You Want To Cut Your Federal Taxes?

Road To The Poorhouse

America's most popular toy this year is called the "crasher truck." It is a mechanical gadget which falls apart when it hits anything. Paced with expenses that may hit $32 billion dollars during 1950, our government could fall apart like the crasher truck unless you, as a citizen, apply the brake.

Three years ago, Congress created a bi-partisan, twelve-man Commission to study the waste and duplication of effort in the agencies and bureaus in the Executive Branch of the Federal Government. This Commission, approved by President Truman and headed by former President Hoover, has turned in a report which would cut our tax bill three to four billion dollars annually—if the recommendations are enacted into law. This means that it would save you one dollar out of every ten you pay in taxes. Whether you realize it or not, every family in the United States pays yearly, on the average, in direct and hidden taxes, more than $1,000.00 each to support the Federal Government alone.

Congress has already authorized $15,000,000,000 for construction of major projects, and another $30,000,000,000 authorization is planned.

The Commission has recommended, (1) Creation of an impartial Board of Analysis for engineering and architectural projects, (2) Long-range planning of projects to meet the ebb and flow of economic cycles, and (3) Coordination of all public works. Such prudence might well save the nation from collapse.

If you think this march down the road to the poorhouse should be halted, wire your Congressman. Write to the Citizens Committee for Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government, 1421 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia 2, Pennsylvania, for further information. Tell your friends and neighbors. You must act before it is too late!

Sacramento Report

By RALPH R. CLOYED
Assemblyman

The long and bitter struggle to withdraw California's name from the list of states advocating United States participation in a world Federal government finally ended in victory last week.

The resolution to rescind our endorsement of world Federalism was repealed in the Senate by a bare 21 to 17 vote and in the Assembly by a margin of 42 to 33. The measure required 21 votes from the upper house and 41 from the Assembly.

Law enforcement officers throughout the state will have a new weapon for combatting the slot machine evil as the result of two bills, that gained final legislative passage. The bills make mere possession of slot machines illegal. Current statutes require that an officer must observe the machines being used before an arrest can be made.

This development followed closely on the heels of an announcement by the Secretary of State that a proposed constitutional amendment to legalize all forms of gambling in California has qualified for the November general election ballot. It would, among other things, legalize bookmaking and slot machines as a means toward financing pension programs.

The Senate, meanwhile, has established an interim committee to conduct a fact-finding investigation into the forces behind the gambling initiative. The proposal is so drastic and far-reaching in its effects that unless it is thoroughly understood by the voters it may perhaps be adopted. Past experience, with similar proposals, shows that they generate much misleading propaganda. Another proposal being studied by the Legislature would permit counties to levy a sales tax to raise revenues to meet mounting pension and other welfare costs. It is believed that the measure, introduced with the approval of the County Supervisors Association, would result in nearly all counties imposing a one-cent or one-half of one-cent sales tax.

The bill to establish a tobacco tax to raise an estimated $40,000,000 to finance increased state aid to public schools appears headed for tough sledding. The measure was finally approved in the Assembly after long and heated debate, but the Senate may either kill the tax or decrease it.

The tobacco tax issue and the extension of the legislative call to include such matters as salary raises for some employees of fifth class counties are the prime reasons the Legislature was unable to adjourn before Easter.

Delicious Fruits Still Available for Housewife In Canning, Preserving

IF YOU'RE suddenly decided to embark on canning, there's still time to put up jellies, pickles and jams for your favorite winter meals. Then, too, some of you may still have space on your canning cupboard shelves for some of the late arrivals.

Peaches, pears, grapes, plums and apples are now reaching markets to be available for preserving.

All these fruits have a definite canning appeal whether you're past master at the art of preserving or a new bride about to embark on her first jelly-making adventure.

HERE ARE SOME colorful and delicious jam combinations which are guaranteed to please because the flavors of fruits used complement each other:

Peach-Plum Jam
(Makes 12 6-ounce glasses)
4½ cups prepared fruit
½ cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

Prepare fruit by peeling and pitting 1½ pounds soft ripe peaches; chop or grind fine. Put but not peel 1 pound fully ripe plums. Cut in small pieces or chop. Combine fruits and measure 4½ cups into a large saucepan. Add sugar to fruit and mix well. Using high heat, bring to a full boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add pectin, stirring. Stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes, ladle quickly into glasses and paraffin at once.

Pear-Peach Jam
(Makes 6 8-ounce glasses)
2 cups finely chopped pears
1½ cups finely chopped peaches
1 box powdered fruit pectin
4½ cups sugar
Add powdered fruit pectin and sugar to fruits which have been mixed together. Mix well and heat to the boiling point, stirring constantly. When a full, rolling boil is reached, boil for 1 minute. Remove from heat and skin. Seal in hot sterilized glasses.

Pear-Plum Jam
(Makes 8 6-ounce glasses)
1½ pounds peeled, ripe pears, chopped
1½ pounds ripe plums, chopped
4½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

Mix fruits, stir in pectin and sugar and heat to a full rolling boil. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from heat and skin. Ladle into sterile glasses and seal at once with paraffin.

Crabapple-Grape Jelly
¾ peck crabapples
4 pounds Concord grapes

Many delicious combinations of jam may be made from two favorite fruits in place of one. A good example of colorful and appetizing jam is the use of peaches and plums, as illustrated here.

LYNN SAYS:
Quickly Prepared Snacks Are Always Popular

Children will cheer when you serve them bananas which have been speared with wooden skewers, then dipped in melted semi-sweet or milk chocolate and placed in the cube compartment of the refrigerator to freeze until chocolate is firm.

Make a man-sized snack by placing corned beef hash slice on a piece of bread and spread with barbecue sauce. Broil until hot.

Make certain your canning cupboard has shelves well laden with pickles, jams and jellies for good winter eating. There's still time to make the pickles and jellies from late-ripening fruits, berries and vegetables.

Water barely to cover Sugar

Select under-ripe apples and grapes. Wash and pick over. Add just enough water barely to cover the fruit and boil until soft. Mash and pour into a jelly bag to drip. Do not squeeze. Measure juice and let boil for 5 minutes. Add sugar (¾ cup sugar for 1 cup of juice) and cook until a drop jells on a cold plate, or until two drops come off spoon at the same time. Pour into sterile glasses and seal with paraffin at once.

Delicious Cucumber Pickles
6 quarts of cucumber slices
1 quart sliced onions
4 large green peppers, cut fine
6 cups vinegar
6 cups sugar
3 teaspoons turmeric
¾ teaspoon white mustard seed
Few whole cloves

Place layers of cucumber slices, onions and green pepper in a crock or large vessel and cover with salt water, made by using ¼ cup salt to 1 quart water. Let stand for 3 hours. Drain. Mix together vinegar, sugar and spices; heat thoroughly but do not boil. Pour over the vegetables and seal in sterilized jars.

Raw Tomato Relish
(Makes 6 pints)
1 peck ripe tomatoes
2 cups chopped celery
5 large onions, chopped fine
2 cups sugar
½ cup salt
2 ounces white mustard seed
1 quart vinegar

Peel tomatoes and chop fine. Drain in a bag overnight. Add celery and onions and remaining ingredients to tomatoes. Mix thoroughly and seal in sterile jars. This may be served just as it comes from the jar with sandwiches, or it may be warmed slightly to serve with leftover meats.

Sweet Pear Pickles
1 peck ripe pears
6 large onions
2 red peppers
2 green peppers
1 cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon mustard seed
3 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon salt

Pare and quarter the pears. Slice onions thin and mince the peppers. Combine all ingredients and cook until the pears are tender. Seal in sterilized jars.

Hungry men will appreciate a sandwich from the pork roast when it is made by placing slices of the meat on buttered bread, then topped with thin slices of unpeeled, cored apples. Top with a slice of buttered bread and serve with cheese-stuffed celery stalks and potato chips.

Combine canned fruit juices for interesting beverages to serve with sandwiches and cookies. Half and half combination of apricot whole fruit nectar and sweetened grapefruit juice is most refreshing.

Should Statements Under Oath Be Taken With a Grain of Salt?

A man went bankrupt, and was haled into court by his creditors. At the hearing, he admitted that he had had $5,000 in cash just a few days before—but claimed he had lost it all. "I was walking down the street," he related, "carrying this money in a satchel. While waiting for a street car, I happened to look down and I noticed that the bag had fallen off—and I was holding only the handle! Since the bag was nowhere to be seen, I threw away the handle and went home." Though there was no way to disprove the story, the judge decided he just didn't believe it—and ordered the man to "find" the $5,000 somehow. The judge figured that, although the story was told under oath, it was too incredible to be taken without a grain of salt.

Does the Law Recognize The Principle of "Cause and Effect?"

This famous case, which arose in the year 1770, laid down a doctrine that is still considered basic in our legal system. Mr. A, bent on mischief, threw a giant firecracker—lighted—into a crowded market place. It landed at the feet of Mr. B, who snatched it and frantically flung it away. This time the sputtering thing landed near Mr. C, who also threw it away to save himself. The firecracker then fell beside Mr. D, and exploded. Mr. D was injured, and sued Mr. A for damages. Mr. A protested that he had thrown the firecracker at Mr. B, not at Mr. D. But the court held him responsible anyway. The judge said that Mr. A had set off an involuntary chain reaction—and thus was responsible for the consequences.

Is a Theater Responsible If a Volunteer From the Audience Gets Hurt in a Vaudeville Stunt?

A 14-year old boy went to a vaudeville matinee, and was invited onto the stage by the master of ceremonies. There he was stationed on a sort of treadmill, and was told to start trotting. The faster the boy trotted, the faster the treadmill whirled. At the climax of the stunt, he was supposed to be thrown from the machine into the waiting arms of an attendant. Unfortunately, the attendant missed—and the boy dropped onto the stage floor. Painfully bruised, he later sued the theater owner for damages. The latter protested that the stunt was "all in fun," but the court was not amused. The judge said that, in staging an act as risky as this one, the theater owner takes the responsibility for his patrons' safety.

May You Strike Somebody For "Sassing" You?

A newboy took a lively dislike to a storekeeper, and on several occasions he made faces at the man. One day the boy tried his stunt just once too often. The merchant seized an umbrella that was handy and smacked his tormentor on the head. Arrested on a charge of assault and battery, the man insisted that his action was justified by the boy's constant "sassing." However, the court disagreed and found him guilty as charged. The judge said it takes more than "dirty looks" to justify an attack of this kind.

A certain town set up a public dance hall in a residential district. The music, which played until 1 A.M. every night, was heavenly to dancers—but hellish to the neighbors! Soon the matter was taken to court, where the judge listened patiently to the pleas of both sides. He finally decided that the music could continue—but only until 11 P.M. In explaining how the law must make compromises, he said: "My freedom to swing my arm ends where the other fellow's nose begins!"

About 75 percent of last year's automobile accidents were caused by drivers of passenger cars.

Male drivers in 1949 were involved in more than 90 percent of all U. S. automobile accidents.

Three out of four traffic accidents happen in clear weather on dry roads.
